

Research Participants Needed

This study is part of the researcher's doctoral education program at Capella University. The purpose of this study is to explore African American parents' experiences with mental health support after their child's ADHD diagnosis. This research study will be composed of open-ended questions in a semi-structured interview that will take place virtually for approximately 60 minutes.

You may be eligible to participate if you or are:

- Over the age of 18.
- An African American parent with a child diagnosed with ADHD.
- Previously received mental health support relating to ADHD
- English speaking.
- Residing in the geographical area of the United States.

You may not be eligible to participate if your child has a diagnosis other than ADHD.
